

ELAINE FOSTER

With a deep passion and love for Idaho, Elaine Foster is proud to have been born and raised in Rexburg, and currently resides in Pocatello, where she works for the Sport Science and Physical Education (SSPE) department at Idaho State University as a clinical instructor. Her education is also rooted in the great state as she attended Brigham Young University-Idaho for two years, then transferred to ISU where, in 2008, she earned her bachelor's degree in physical education, emphasizing in exercise science. From 2009-2010, Elaine served as a graduate teaching assistant for the SSPE department, and earned her master's degree in Physical Education-Athletic Administration. Following graduate school, Elaine, became the equipment coordinator for the SSPE department at ISU. She served in this roll until July 2016. Along with her adoration for Idaho, Elaine has always been drawn toward sports, physical education, and health. From the time she was very young, Elaine knew that she always wanted to be around these professions. She has served within the field in many capacities including coach, referee, group fitness instructor, personal trainer, event coordinator, and physical education instructor. Mostly, Elaine loves teaching college students, and seeing the extreme growth and understanding that these young adults attain through their education. In addition to building a career in physical education, Elaine has taken countless opportunities to engage in physical activity herself. With her husband, Jake, Elaine spends time backpacking in Idaho's wilderness, cross country skiing, trail running, strength training, and playing a little racquetball and badminton. When not working or being physically active, Elaine and Jake enjoy going on scenic car rides, playing with their dog Aussie, hunting, visiting family and friends, and watching movies.
